

List of Contributors

Rachelle Alterman is the David Azrieli Professor of Town Planning at the Faculty of Architecture and Town Planning at the Technion—Israel Institute of Technology and chairs the Technion's Graduate Program in Urban and Regional Planning. Dr. Alterman holds a BA Honors and an M.C.P. from Manitoba, a D.Sc. from the Technion and an LLB from Tel Aviv University. Dr. Alterman is well known internationally for her research and numerous publications on comparative planning and land use law, land policy, and planning theory.

Peter Bassin is the Project Manager for the Ljubljana Urban Institute at LUZ, Ljubljana and is the former Division Head at the Institute of Architecture and Urban Design in Ljubljana. Mr. Bassin holds a Diploma in Engineering and Architecture from the University of Ljubljana and an MA in Architecture from Harvard University. Mr. Bassin is the recipient of numerous prizes in National Urban Design and Architectural competitions in Ljubljana and is a Member of the Executive Committee of the Chamber of Architects, Urban Designers and Landscape Architects of Slovenia.

Michael M. Berger is a Shareholder in Berger & Norton, Santa Monica, California, and Adjunct Professor in The Graduate Program in Real Property Development at the University of Miami School of Law. Mr. Berger holds a J.D. from Washington University and an LL.M. from the University of Southern California. Mr. Berger has spent virtually his entire legal career representing property owners in litigation against government agencies in either direct or inverse condemnation actions. Mr. Berger was counsel of record in a number of the decisions that this article analyzes.

Brian Blaesser heads the Land Use and Development Group in the Boston office of Robinson & Cole LLP, where he practices in the areas of commercial real estate development and leasing, multifamily residential development, land use and environmental law, planning law, condemnation law and litigation. He has extensive experience in state and federal trial and appellate courts in litigation involving the taking issue, vested rights, condemnation, U.S. EPA enforcement actions and violations of Section 1983 of the Civil Rights Act. Mr.

Blaesser is the author or co-author of various publications on land use and real estate development, including the books, Discretionary Land Use Controls: Avoiding Invitations to Abuse of Discretion (West Group: 3d ed. 2000); Condemnation of Property: Practice and Strategies for Winning Just Compensation (1994); and Land Use and the Constitution (1989).

Mr. Blaesser received his B.A. from Brown University and his J.D. from Boston College where he served as an editor of the Law Review. He also holds a masters in city planning (M.C.P.) from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (M.I.T.) and was a Fulbright Scholar. He is an elected member of Lambda Alpha International, the honorary land economics society.

J. David Breemer is a student at the William S. Richardson School of Law, class of 2001. Mr. Breemer is the Casenotes Editor for the University of Hawaii Law Review and holds a M.A. in Political Science from the University of California at Davis.

David L. Callies, the Benjamin A. Kudo Professor of Law, William S. Richardson School of Law, University of Hawaii at Manoa; A.B., DePauw University; J.D., the University of Michigan; LL.M., the University of Nottingham (Eng.). Professor Callies gratefully acknowledges the support of the William S. Richardson School of Law and the Hawaii Property Law Project (funded in part by the Pacific Legal Foundation and the Cades Foundation) in the preparation of this article.

Rodney L. Cobb holds a B.S. in Urban Planning from Michigan State University and a J.D. from Thomas M. Cooley Law School. Currently, Mr. Cobb is the Staff Attorney for the American Planning Association (APA). For over 15 years, he has been the Editor of APA's Land Use Law and Zoning Digest and has organized and moderated the Alfred Bettman Symposium, the major law portion of the APA's annual National Conference. In addition, Mr. Cobb serves as staff to the APA's Amicus Curiae Brief Committee that files briefs in key land use cases in state and federal courts.

Mr. Cobb writes on land-use issues including statutory reform, growth management and affordable housing. This year, the Public Policy Institute of the American Association of Retired Persons published a guidebook written by Mr. Cobb that includes a model statute and ordinance on accessory dwelling units.

In July of 2000, Mr. Cobb was awarded the Jefferson Fordham Award for excellence in municipal advocacy by the Section on State and Local Government of the American Bar Association.

Margaret Collins, AICP, is a former student of Daniel Mandelker's. While she was a graduate student at Washington University, Ms. Collins co-authored Reviving Cities with Tax Abatement, with Professor Mandelker and Gary Feder. During the 1980s, she was a Director of Roger Tym and Partners, a leading United Kingdom firm of urban and land economists. In the early 1990s, she returned to the United States to establish Cambridge Economic Research, a consulting practice specializing in local and regional economic development strategies. Her practice has advised on planning and real estate development issues in Asia, South and Central America, the Caribbean, Europe and in Africa. Ms. Collins has performed, with Professor Mandelker, a significant amount of work for the planning department of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region on the applicability of American planning techniques and development practices to the challenges faced by land use practitioners in Hong Kong. Her practice is based in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Charles E. Daye, Henry Brandis Distinguished Professor of Law, University of North Carolina; B.A., 1966, magna cum laude, North Carolina Central University; J.D., 1969, cum laude, Columbia University School of Law; admitted to practice NY, DC, NC; first African American to serve as a law clerk in the Sixth Circuit as law clerk for the late Hon. Harry Phillips, Chief Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (1969-1970); associate, Covington & Burling, Washington D.C. (1970-1972); first African American full-time law professor at UNC-Chapel Hill (1972); Dean North Carolina Central University School of Law (1981-1985); named Henry Brandis Distinguished Professor (1991); teaches torts, housing and community development and administrative advocacy; co-author of casebook, Housing and Community Development, and co-author of treatise, North Carolina Law of Torts; author of articles on housing, state administrative procedure, torts, constitutional law, affirmative action, recruitment ethics and a history of African American and other minority students at UNC's law school; president, Law School Admission Council (1991-1993); chair, Triangle Housing Development Corp. (1977-1993); chair, NC Fair Housing Center (1996-present); and chair, NC Poverty Project (1990-present).

John J. Delaney, AICP, is a founding partner of the law firm of Linowes and Blocher LLP in Silver Spring, Maryland, where he has practiced since 1965. Prior to that, he was an Assistant County Attorney for Montgomery County, Maryland. Mr. Delaney has represented and served as a consultant to developers, municipalities and institutional clients in a wide variety of matters including land use regulation and litigation, growth management and municipal law. Mr. Delaney has written extensively and lectured throughout the country on land use regulation and has briefed and argued numerous reported cases in state and federal courts, including the Maryland Court of Appeals, the United States District Court for the District of Maryland, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit and the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Delaney teaches Land Use Regulation as a member of the adjunct faculty at American University's Washington College of Law in Washington, D.C., and is also a member of the ALI-ABA Land Use Institute faculty. Mr. Delaney is co-author of Handling the Land Use Case (2d. ed., 1997).

Mr. Delaney received his LL.B. from the Georgetown University Law Center, and his B.S.S. from Georgetown University. He is admitted to the Bars of Maryland, the District of Columbia and the United States Supreme Court.

William R. Ewald is a development consultant in Los Angeles; member, American Institute of Graphic Arts; former member, AIP. Mr. Ewald is the author of numerous books and reports, and co-author with Daniel R. Mandelker of Street Graphics (1979) and several editions thereafter. Mr. Ewald has professional staff experience with Saarinen, SOM and Doxadis and policy experience in city, state and federal government. Mr. Ewald's clients have included: President John F. Kennedy, Governor Nelson and Rockefeller, Governor Winthrop Rockefeller, Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, General Electric, Edison Electric Institute, AIA, AIP, ASLA, National Science Foundation, HUD, Commerce, HEW, Interiro, the EPA, Nasua and Puerto Rico.

Charles F. Floyd, Professor Emeritus, Terry College of Business, The University of Georgia.

Jeffry Frieden is Professor of Government at Harvard University. He specializes in the politics of international monetary and financial relations. Mr. Frieden is the author of Banking on the World: The Politics of American International Finance (1987) and Debt, Development, and Democracy: Modern Political Economy and Latin America, 1965-1985 (1991) and is the editor or co-editor of a number of other books on related topics. Mr. Frieden's articles on the politics of international economic issues have appeared in a wide variety of scholarly and general-interest publications.

Robert H. Freilich, Professor of Law, University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Law; Editor, The Urban Lawyer, the national journal on state and local government law of the American Bar Association; Partner, Freilich, Leitner & Carlisle, Kansas City, Missouri; A.B. University of Chicago, 1954; Yale Law School, LL.B., 1957; Master of Int'l Planning, Columbia, 1958; LL.M and J.S.D., Columbia Law School (1969, 1975).

Paula A. Franzese, Professor of Law (property, commercial law survey, civil rights and civil liberties). Professor Franzese received her B.A., summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, from Barnard College, where she received the Bryson Prize and Foreman Fellowship, and her J.D. from Columbia University School of Law, where she was an International Fellow and recipient of the prestigious Rosenman Prize. Professor Franzese was a litigator with Cahill, Gordon, and Reindel in New York City, where she also served as a member of the Housing Court Reform Project and the Governor's Task Force on Life and law. Professor Franzese clerked for Justice Alan B. Handler of the New Jersey Supreme Court and has published in the areas of property law, contracts, land use and zoning, commercial law, bankruptcy and legal ethics. Professor Franzese is co-author of Property Law and the Public Interest (1998), author of Throw Your Fears Out the Window: A Book of Wisdom, Inspiration, and Guidance for Law Students and Lawyers (1997) and co-author of New Jersey Forms of Jury Instruction (1993). She is featured in Legends of the Law on Property (1996) and is a commentator on Court T.V. She serves on the American Bar Association Uniform Commercial Code Study Revision Group, the American Arbitration Association, The National Affordable Housing Colloquium, the Federal Bar Council and the Columbia Law School Alumni Board of Directors, and has served as Chair of the Barnard College Alumnae Council. She is president of the National Justice Resource Center, founded the New Jersey Mentor Program and the Judicial Clerkships Program and is Commissioner of the Essex Commission on Unity. In 1996, Professor Franzese was appointed by Governor Whitman to serve as a Commissioner of the New Jersey Election Law Enforcement Commission.

Jules B. Gerard is Professor of Law at Washington University in St. Louis, from which he received his undergraduate and law degrees (A.B., 1957; J.D., 1958). He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and The Order of the Coif, and was editor-in-chief of the Washington University Law Quarterly (1958). He is the author of Local Regulation of Adult Businesses (1993; published annually) and of The Proposed Washington, D.C. Amendment (1979). He is coauthor of Federal Land Use Law (1986) (with Mandelker and Sullivan), and of The Sum and Substance of Constitutional Law (4th ed. 1986) (with Van Alstyne and Karst). He edited One Hundred Years of the Fourteenth Amendment (1973). Professor Gerard is the author of many articles in professional and popular periodicals dealing with constitutional law and with law and psychiatry, his specialties. He has testified before committees of the United States Congress and of state legislatures. From 1950 to 1954 he served as a pilot in the United States Air Force.

Robert L. Glicksman is the Robert W. Wagstaff Professor of Law at the University of Kansas. A 1977 graduate of the Cornell Law School, Professor Glicksman teaches environmental law, administrative law and property law. He is the co-author of a casebook on environmental regulation, Environmental Protection: Law and Policy (Aspen Law & Business 3d ed. 1999) (with F. Anderson, D. Mandelker, & A.D. Tarlock), the three-volume treatise, Public Natural Resources Law (updated three times annually), and the nutshell Modern Public Land Law (1995). Mr. Glicksman is writing a book on risk regulation (with S. Shapiro) and is the author of numerous articles on environmental, natural resource, administrative and property law.

Otto J. Hetzel is Professor of Law Emeritus, Wayne State University Law School (since 1996), and co-author of two law texts, Housing and Community Development and Legislative Law and Process. Professor Hetzel received an LL.M. from Harvard Law School in 1970, a J.D. (LL.B.) from Yale Law School in 1960, and a B.A. from the Pennsylvania State University in 1955. He has taught courses and seminars in Housing and Community Development, Legislation, Land Use, and Civil Procedure and served as Associate Director of Wayne State's Center for Urban Studies. Professor Hetzel was also Co-Editor of the Journal, Urban Law and Policy. Currently, Professor Hetzel is a Director of Wayne State's Fair Housing Educational Program and also practices law in Washington, D.C. He has advised the Czech Republic government regarding strategies to transition to a free-market in housing supported by funds from U.S. A.I.D. and was a Fellow at Harvard Law School.

Professor Hetzel is admitted to the Michigan, California and District of Columbia Bars and to federal district courts in those states and Maryland, the D.C., Sixth, Eighth, and Ninth Circuit Courts of Appeal, the Federal Claims Court and the United States Supreme Court. Professor Hetzel is an Elected Member of the American Law Institute.

Joseph Gordon Hylton, Associate Professor of Law, Marquette University. Ph.D, Harvard University; J.D., University of Virginia; A.B., Oberlin College.

Jerold S. Kayden is Associate Professor of Urban Planning at the Harvard University Graduate School of Design.

W. Dennis Keating, Levin College of Urban Affairs and Cleveland-Marshall College of Law, Cleveland State University.

James A. Kushner teaches urban planning law at Southwestern University in Los angeles. He is the author of Comparative Urban Planning Law (forthcoming); Land Use Regulation: Cases and Materials (with Daniel P. Selmi); Housing and Community Development—Cases and Materials—Third Edition (with Day, Mandelker, Hetzel, McGee, Washburn, Salsich and Keating); Fair Housing: Discrimination in Real Estate, Community Development and Revitalization—Second Editon, Subdivision Law and Growth Management, Government Discrimination: Equal Protection Law and Litigation and Apartheid in America. Professor Kushner is a frequent commentator on European and American urban planning law and policy.

Amy Mandelker is Associate Professor of Comparative Literature at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. She is the author of books and articles on Russian literature and theory, and the editor of Bakhtin in Contexts: Across the Disciplines (Evanston: Northwestern University Press, 1995).

Henry W. McGee, Jr. is Professor of Law at Seattle University School of Law and Professor Emeritus, UCLA School of Law. Mr. McGee has a journalism degree from Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism, a J.D. from DePaul University, and an LL.M from Columbia. He has published extensively and teaches in the areas of environmental law, housing and land use and international environmental law and development with an emphasis on Latin America. Mr. McGee's visiting positions include an appointment as a Fulbright Professor at the University of Madrid (Complutense) and a Visiting Fellow at Wolfson College, Oxford. He was a visiting professor and researcher at universities in Brasil, Iceland, Italy, Mexico and Puerto Rico.

Stuart Meck, Fellow, American Institute of Certified Planners; Principal Investigator, Growing SmartSM project, American Planning Association, Chicago, Ill.; B.A. in Journalism (1969), M.A. in Journalism, Master of City Planning (1971), The Ohio State University; M.B.A. (1981), Wright State University; licensed professional planner, State of New Jersey; registered professional community planner, State of Michigan.

John M. Payne is Professor of Law and Justice Frederick Hall Scholar at Rutgers Law School-Newark, where he teaches constitutional law, land use controls, and state and local government law. Professor Payne has written and lectured extensively on affordable housing and regional planning issues, based on his participation in the Mount Laurel litigation in New Jersey, and was President of the Alliance for Affordable Housing, a statewide advocacy coalition. With Professor Mandelker, he is the co-author of Planning and Control of Land Development: Cases and Materials (5th Ed., forthcoming 2001).

Peter W. Salsich, Jr. is the McDonnell Professor of Justice in American Society at Saint Louis University School of Law. He holds a joint appointment in the Department of Public Policy Studies and is a fellow of the American College of Real Estate Lawyers. Professor Salsich is a member of the American Planning Association, Association of American Law Schools, Missouri Bar and the Bar Association of Metropolitan Saint Louis. He received his A.B. from the University of Notre Dame (1959) and his J.D. from Saint Louis University (1965).

Professor Salsich is author of Missouri Landlord-Tenant Relationship, and is co-author of Land Use Regulation, Property Law, State and Local Government in a Federal System, and State and Local Taxation and Finance in a Nutshell. He is the author of chapters in a casebook on housing law and a treatise on state and local government financing. He has published numerous articles and has been an active participant in CLE programs at the local, state and national levels and was a recipient of the Thompson and Mitchell faculty scholarship award and the Student Bar Association Teacher of the Year award. Professor Salsich teaches property, land use, real estate transactions, state and local government, and housing.

Edward J. Sullivan is a partner with the Portland office of Preston Gates & Ellis, LLP specializing in planning, administrative, and state and local government law. He also teaches planning law at Northwestern College of Law and Portland State University. He has participated as an editor and author in all four of the Oregon State Bar Continuing Legal Education publications on Land Use. He was admitted to the Oregon Bar in 1969 and was Washington County (Oregon) Counsel and Legal Counsel to the Governor of Oregon before entering private practice in 1978. Mr. Sullivan has written widely on municipal and planning law topics throughout his more than thirty years of practice. He is the Chair of the International Municipal Lawyers Association Section on Land Development, Planning and Zoning and Co-Chair of the Subcommittee on Comprehensive Planning and Growth Management of the Land Use, Planning and Zoning Committee for the American Bar Association Section on State and Local Government.

E. Thomas Sullivan—On July 1, 1995 Dean E. Thomas Sullivan joined the University of Minnesota Law School as the eighth Dean and William S. Pattee Professor of Law. Previously, he served for six years as the Dean of the University of Arizona College of Law, and as Associate Dean and Professor of Law at Washington University in St. Louis. He began his teaching career in 1979 at the University of Missouri, Columbia. On two occasions he was a visiting faculty member at Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, D.C. Dean Sullivan was also a Visiting Scholar twice at Cambridge University in England. Dean Sullivan's teaching areas include antitrust, civil procedure, and regulation of business. He is a nationally recognized authority on antitrust law and complex litigation, having authored or co-authored eight books and over thirty articles and essays on antitrust, including a leading treatise, a casebook and a hornbook on antitrust.

Dan Tarlock is a Professor of Law at the Chicago Kent College of Law. He holds an A.B. and LL.B. from Stanford University and was a Revising Editor of the Stanford Law Review in 1964-65. Professor Tarlock practiced law in San Francisco and Omaha-Denver, and taught at the universities of Chicago, Indiana, Michigan, Texas and Utah. In 1985, he was the Raymond F. Rice Distinguished Visiting Professor, University of Kansas, and in 1996 was the Distinguished Foreign Visitor at the Queensland University of technology in Brisbane, Australia. Professor Tarlock has written and lectured on environmental, land use, natural resources and water resources law in the United States, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China and Europe and consulted widely on these issues. Professor Tarlock is currently a special advisor to the Council on Environmental Cooperation. His publications include Land-Use Controls (1981); Water Resources Management (Foundation Press 4th ed., 1993 with James Corbridge, Chancellor, University of Colorado and Professor David Getches), Environmental Protection: Law and Policy (with Frederick L. Anderson, Robert Glicksman and Professor Daniel R. Mandelker 1999) and Law of Water Rights and Resources (1988).

Judith Welch Wegner is co-author with Daniel Mandelker of State and Local Government in a Federal System. She has been a professor of law at the University of North Carolina since 1981 and served as dean from 1989-1999. She is currently on leave as a Senior Scholar with the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, serving as principal investigator of a major study on legal education. She received her B.A. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1972, and her J.D. from UCLA in 1976.