

Robert J. Iversen served as a valued and dedicated member of the publication staff for Volumes 92 and 93 before his death. Rob was expected to earn his juris doctor in May 2016. Over the course of two years, Rob's contributions to the Washington University Law Review were myriad, and as a member of the Volume 93 Law Review staff, Rob was elected to the role of Senior Executive Editor.

Aside from his many contributions to the Washington University Law Review, Rob was an accomplished and talented law student. Rob was a scholarship recipient, an award recipient for excellence in legal writing, a member of the award-winning Washington University National Moot Court Team, and the champion of Washington University's 2014 Wiley Rutledge Moot Court Competition.

Rob's tremendous intelligence, diligence, and outspoken nature made him a truly remarkable staff member. We dedicate this volume of the Washington University Law Review to him.